Poor Deformed Goost.

He Was Wicked, But He Saved "Litty Mas."

'No soup !' exclaimed my mother.

The table was spread for one of those enormous dinners in which Southern households exulted before the war ; the guests were arriving, and my mother was in her chamber pinning some fresh roses in her bosom, when Aunt Sileny, the fat cook, waddled in with this appalling announcement.

'What has become of the soup ?'

'De bes' gumbo dat I make des year ! In de pot. Hed tree days' work wid it! Dat Goost—jes' creep in, lif' de pot to he's head, 'n' drunk lot ob it an' spill de rest !'

'Oh, Goost !' said my mother, calmly. 'Can't you give us any other soup, Aunt Sileny ?'

'Don' want ter gib strange gemmen hasty scrambles. Ef I had dat niggah' —— and Aunt Sileny grumbled her way back to the kitchen.

My mother went on pinning her roses, which were not so soft a pink as her pretty cheeks, and I stood close at her side admiring her, when the twins burst in, their Scotch kilts and plaid sashes covered with mud, followed by Tilda, the nurse.

'Mother, Goost rolled me in the chicken yard 'cause he said we'd tell he'd been suckin' eggs !'

'Please, Miss Emmy, I hed dem all ready,' began Tilda, 'foh de company.'

My mother put her hands to her ears.

'Leave the room, every one of you ! Change their clothes, Tilda. Was ever a woman tormented ? That boy is possessed with —— What is the matter with you, William ?' turning to meet my father who stood in the door-way.

He was a tall, grave man, of whom his children stood greatly in awe. But my mother, little, vivacious, animated, with all the enthusiasm of the French blood that was in her veins, was the idol of the house. My father held up his new hat, but yesterday a glossy beaver, but now battered and muddy.

'I find that this was worn last night by that boy Augustus, and'——

'Goost again !' My mother threw herself into her easy-chair in an attitude of resignation. 'Oh, go on, William ! Don't mind me. There seems to be a hailstorm of miseries setting in. My umbrella is up !'

'Issdore, do be rational. This negro must be punished or sent away.'

'Punished ! Why, there is not a day that he is not cuffed and beaten about the kitchen and stables ! Coachman, hostler, waiters, all take their turn at him. The blows fall upon him as if he had an alligator's hide. Sent away ! Where ? Who would take him as a gift ? For mercy's sake, take that hat out of the room and don't mention Goost's name to me again !'

I was standing by the window, and I remember that I looked at my mother in her soft, shimmering silk, pearls about her breast, and then down into the garden, where Goost, the deformed negro stable boy, squatted lazily in the sun, and thought what a shame it was that she should ever have to see or think of such a fellow. As to any idea that he was a human being and bound to us by any tie, it never impressed me, nor, I am sure, her. My father, Dr. Champney, was a physician in a large town on the border of one of the slave-holding States. As only the river separated us from the State of Ohio, any shrewd slave who wanted to be free had but to cross the stream in a bateau to escape. Hence, few remained but those who were contented with their lot. The latter generally were old house-servants, 'uncles' and 'maumers,' who were looked upon as a part of the family, and so treated.

Among our share was this boy Goost, a deformed and seemingly worthless negro. He stole, he drank, he seldom by any chance spoke the truth. 'Champney's Goost' was at the bottom of half the mischief in town. He would disappear for days and creep back a mass of rags and mud, to beg for some new clothes and to present himself for his rations. There was, too, a vindictive malice in his tricks, which showed that in his dull, ignorant soul there was a bitter hatred of the whole family. But nothing would induce him to go to Ohio, or to be free. He evidently was of the opinion that the world, or the Champneys, owed him a living.

While I was looking out of the window into the garden, Aunt Sileny and Tilda both took time from their labors to go out and berate Goost, to which Tilda added some vicious blows on the ear. She might as well have beaten the horse-block at the gate. Goost did not budge nor wink while she struck him, but as she turned away he shot a malignant glance after her. Then Jean and Ted, the boys who waited passed him in their natty dress suits and white aprons, and each of them stepped out of his way to kick him. He did not move, but grumbled out oaths. Even I began to feel that Goost had hard measure in this world. My mother had gone down and the grand dinner was now in progress. I was watching the procession of dishes from the kitchen along the gallery below, when I saw Nix run out.

Nix was my Uncle Bob's little boy, about five years old. The whole family really thought that no such beautiful child had ever been born. Uncle Bob, with his wife and boy, lived in New Orleans, but were with us now on a visit.

'Nix ! Nix !' I cried. 'What are you doing there ?'

But Nix did not hear her heed me. He flew straight down the path and pushed Goost's head up.

'Make a lap !' he ordered, and in a moment had snuggled down, white skirts, lace and all, onto the negro's knees. They sat talking, apparently on the most intimate terms, when Nix bounded off, darted into the house, and brought back a plate of Aunt Sileny's famous kisses. He was proceeding to ram the snowy glistening sweetness down the cavernous mouth before him, when—could it be ?—Goost remonstrated.

'Take 'em back, litty mas' Dey'll scold you. I don' wan' see you scold. Take 'em back.'

But Nix compromised by gobbling up all the kisses himself, like a little glutton, and then commanded Goost to 'Gimme ride !' The man turned over on his hands and knees, helped Nix to climb to his back, and then crawled away, trotting or galloping, as the baby ordered.

Just at this moment Uncle Bob came into the garden. Now Uncle Bob was a hot-tempered man, and he had warned my father that 'it was dangerous to keep that half-idiot on the place.' He jerked Nix off his back and angrily ordered Goost 'never to touch or speak to the child again.' Then he came up under the window to the gallery. I wondered to see Goost follow him.

'Mas' Bob,' he said, humbly, 'don' say dat, foh God's sake ! Lemme gib de chile ride. I bin gibin' him ride ebery day. I won't hurt him. I—I likes to gib him ride. Show him how we do it, litty mas'.'

He dropped down on his hands and knees, and looked up like a hungry dog begging. It seemed pitiful to me, because I saw that Nix was the only one of us who had ever taken any notice of him, and that he loved the baby. But Uncle Bob, I suppose, did not stop to think. He kicked Goost once, twice.

'Don't dare to touch the child again !' he said.

At that Nix flew to Goost where he lay, and threw his arms about him.

'Stop 'at ! Bad papa ! he screamed. 'Goost good ! I love Goost !' hugging the woolly black head.

His father took him in, screaming, and Goost got up and looked after them. When he saw me, he said : 'I wouldn't hev hurt dat chile, Miss Annie.' I thought the tears were in his eyes, but he suddenly went off, turning hand-springs like a wheel and yelping just like a dog.

Uncle Bob, Aunt Belle and Nix went home next week, and my mother and I went with them for a visit. The day before we started, Goost came up to Uncle Bob, smiling as if he had just taken a gold medal for good conduct.

'Mas' Bob, I tink I'll 'long to you now. Mas' William say I no 'count. Ef you lemme go wid you, I take mighty good care ob Mas' Nix.'

Uncle Bob was in good humor that day, so he only laughed.

'Thank you, Augustus. But I wouldn' rob your Master William of your services. I have enough of your sort in the sugar-fields at Lafourche.'

'Very well, sah !' and Goost (his real name was Augustus Imperator) disappeared.

We went by boat down the river. It was an immense boat, the Messenger, with three cabins all gilding and glass and gay hangings. There was a party of our friends going down to New Orleans, and mamma and Aunt Belle wore their pretty gowns, and there were music and dancing in the saloon every night. Nix, of course, was the darling of every body.

One day Tilda came up, her eyes round and wide, leading him, his clothes all soot and grime. The Captain followed her.

'We unearthed a miserable stowaway in the hold, Mrs. Champney,' he said, 'and your little boy recognized him and insisted upon hugging him.'

'Goost !' said Tilda.

'Ah, ciel !' gasped my mother. Uncle Bob begean to scold. The Captain offered to put the negro off at the next landing, but mamma interferred.

'I couldn't drive a faithful dog away,' she said. 'It is the child that he loves. He can do no harm. Let him go with us.'

I believe they tried to make Goost shovel coal, but I am quite snre he did not overwork himself. At night we would hear him with a banjo 'dancing Juba' in the fire-room. He was allowed to see Nix very seldom, though sometimes the boy hired Tilda to take him down. He used every day to save up bits of his dessert for Goost.

It is strange that I remember these trifles while the great event of the voyage is so dim to me. We went to our staterooms one night as usual. I recollect that I began to choke in my dreams ; that I struggled to sit up. There was thick smoke all around me. I was not sure whether I was asleep or not ; I could not make myself awake. Red points of light shone here and there ; there were loud shouts ; I was parched with heat—then I was awake. I screamed for my mother, who slept below me but she lay like one dead. I climbed down and dragged her up, but she seemed stupefied.

'Fire ! fire !' I shrieked. 'The boat is on fire !'

She seemed to waken all at once, and began to talk very fast, as usual.

'Put on your wrapper, Annie. Don't scream so ! you deafen me ! Tut ! tut! What a fuss !'

Somebody pounded on the door. 'Yes, yes ! I'm coming. Where is my pink over-cloak, child ?'

Outside all the passengers were huddled on the stern of the boat. The flames at the bow roared and swept up to the very sky. Between us and the shores stretched the black deep water. There were but two boats. Even then I noticed how eager the officers of the boat were to put my mother in one of them. She was one of those women that every body takes care of. They lifted me in beside her and Aunt Belle and the other ladies. Uncle Bob, with Nix in his arms, blustering and swearing, blaming the captain and crew for the accident.

'Is your boy to go in this boat, Colonel Champney ?' said the mate, sharply.

'The boat is overloaded now. I'll not trust him in it,' began Uncle Bob.

'Push off !' shouted the captain.

'Stop !' ordered Uncle Bob. But the boat had already left the steamer.

'He can not swim !' cried Aunt Belle. 'O God, save them !'

The fire lighted up the water and the black figures struggling in it. We saw Uncle Bob take a few strokes ; then he frantically beat the water with his free hand. He turned over, sank, rose again. Then the dark shape of a man came to his side and seized the baby. We could see no more.

We reached the shore in safety. Morning began to dawn, and then we could tell who were dead and who were living. Several bodies were washed ashore and lay on the pebbly beach, the very people who had been dancing and singing with us last night. I remember how horrible it seemed to me that the red-birds and the jays began to sing in the trees overhead, and to go on building their nests as if they did not care. They found Uncle Bob a mile down the river, quite dead. In one hand he clutched a piece of little Nix's night-gown.

The captain came up to my mother. 'Come here,' he said. I followed them to the beach. There was Goost's deformed body in its rags, and on his breast lay Nix alive, and actually laughing.

'The poor darkey,' said the captain, 'saved the child. He evidently was exhausted when he approached the shore, for he seems to have struggled just beyond the reach of the water, and then died. He certainly wasn't drowned ; perhaps it was some hidden heart disease.'

Nix began to pummel him as usual. 'Wake up, Goost,' he cried.

'Kiss him, Nix,' said my mother who was crying.

"What and when to eat," is the title on an exchange. The "when" never gave us any trouble in our eating, but we have been compelled to do a sight of skirmishing after the "what."

BILL NYE ON RAILROADS.

The Humorist's Graphic Account of the First Train.

The Initial Trip Was Rather Slow for These Times, and Had Some Drawbacks.

Perhaps there is nothing in the line of discovery and improvement that has shown more marked progress in the last century than the railway and its different auxiliaries. When we remember that much less than a century has passed since the first patent for a locomotive to move upon a track was issued, where now we have everything that heart can wish, and, in fact, live better on the road than we do at home, with but thirty-six hours between New York and Minneapolis, and a gorgeous parlor, bed-room and a dining-room, between Maine and Oregon, with nothing missing that may go to make life a rich blessing, we are compelled to express our wonder and admiration.

To Peter Cooper is largely due the boom given to railway business, he having constructed the first locomotive ever made in this country, and put it on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The first train ever operated must have been a grand sight. First came the locomotive, a large Babcock fire-extinguisher on trucks, with a smoke-stack like a full-blown speaking-tube with a frill around the top; the engineer at his post in a plug hat, with an umbrella over his head and his hand on the throttle, borrowing a chew of tobacco now and then of the farmers who passed him on their way to town. Near him stood the fireman, now and then bringing in an armful of wood from the fields through which they passed, and turning the damper in the smoke-stack every little while so that it would draw. Now and then he would go forward and put a pork-rind on a hot box or pound on the cylinder head to warn people off the track.

Next comes the tender loaded with nice, white birch wood, an enonomical style of fuel because its bark may be easily burned off while the wood itself will remain uninjured. Beside the firewood we find on the tender a barrel of rainwater and a tall, blonde jar with a wicker-work around it, which contains a small sprig of tansy immersed in four gallons of New England rum. This the engineer has brought with him for use in case of accident. He is now engaged in preparing for the accident in advance.

Next comes the front brakeman in a plug hat about two sizes too large for him. He also wears a long-wasted frock coat with a bustle to it and a tall shirt-collar with a table-spread tie, the ends of which flutter gayly in the morning breeze. As the train pauses at the first station he takes a hammer out of the tool-box and nails on the tire of the fore wheel of his coach. The engineer gets down with a long oil can and puts a little sewing machine oil on the pitman. He then wipes it off with his sleeve.

It is now discovered that the rear coach, containing a number of directors and the division superintendent, is missing. The conductor goes to the rear of the last coach, and finds that the string by which the directors' car was attached is broken, and that, the grade being pretty steep, the directors and one brakeman have no doubt gone back to the starting place.

But the conductor is cool. He removes his bell-crowned plug hat, and taking out his orders and time card, he finds that the track is clear, and looking at a large, valuable Waterbury watch, presented to him by a widow whose husband was run over and killed by the train, he sees he can still make the next station in time for dinner. He hires a livery team to go back after the directors' coach, and calling "All aboard !' he swings lightly upon the moving train.

It is now 10 o'clock, and nineteen weary miles still stretch out between him and the dinner station. To add to the horrors of the situation, the front brakeman discovers that a very thirsty boy in the emigrant car has been drinking from the water-supply tank on the tender, and there is not enough left to carry the train through. Much time is consumed in filling the barrel again at a spring near the track, but the conductor finds a "spotter" on the train and gets him to do it. He also induces him to cut some more wood and clean out the ashes.

The engineer then pulls out the drawhead and begins to make up time. In twenty minutes he has made up an hour's time, though two miles of hoop-iron are torn from the track behind him. He sails into the eating station on time, and while the master mechanic takes several of the coach-wheels over to the machine shop to soak, he eats a hurried lunch.

The brakeman here gets his tin lanterns ready for the night run and fills two of them with red oil to be used on the rear coach.

The fireman puts a fresh bacon-rind on the eccentric, stuffs some more cotton batting around the axles, puts a new lynch-pin in the hind wheels, sweeps the apple-peelings out of the smoking car, and he is ready.

Then comes the conductor, with his plug hat full of excursion tickets, orders passes and time-checks; he looks at his Waterbury watch, waves his hand, and calls "All aboard !" again. It is upgrade, however, and for two miles the "spotter" has to push behind with all his might before the conductor will allow him to get on and ride.

Thus began the history of a gigantic enterprise which has grown till it is a comfort, a convenience, a luxury, and yet a necessity. It has built up and beautified the desert. It has crept beneath the broad river, scaled the snowy mountain, and hung by iron arms from the canyon and the precipice, carrying the young to new lands and reuniting those long separated. It has taken the hopeless to lands of new hope. It has invaded the solitude of the wilderness, spiked down valuable land-grants, killed cheap cattle and then paid a high price for them, whooped through valleys, snorted over lofty peaks, crept through long, dark tunnels, turning the bright glare of day suddenly upon those who thought the tunnel was two miles long, roared through the night and glittered through the day, bringing alike the groom to his beautiful bride and the weeping prodigal to the moss-grown graye of his mother.

You are indeed a heartless, soulless corporation, and yet you are very essential in our business.—Bill Nye, in the Chicago News.

A Clever Ruse.

A French nobleman played a game at ecarte with a foreign count. The latter won, and the Frenchman pulled out ten thousand francs and handed them to the winner, who quietly secured them in his pocketbook and went home. Early next morning a gentleman of aristocratic bearing and decorated with the order of the Legion of Honor, was shown into the apartment of the foreign count, who was asleep.

'Monsieur,' he said, in tones trembling with excitement, 'you hold in your hands the honor of a whole family.'

'Indeed !'

'Kindly tell me, was it you who played with M. de X ?'

'Yes.'

'You won ten thousand francs ?'

'Quite correct.'

'And he paid you ?'

'Yes in bank-notes. I have them here.'

'Well, sir, the notes are false.'

'Is it possible ?'

'It is, alas, too true ! Last night we were apprised of the nefarious practices of our relative, and this morning I started off at daybreak to call here, and ask you, in heaven's name, to exchange those notes for ten others which I have brought with me.'

The noble foreigner, out of consideration for his visitor's grief, exchanged the notes. But, on returning to the club the same evening, he was not a little surprised to meet his opponent of the previous night, and what was still more surprising, the latter proposed to have his revenge. The foreigner curtly refused, and the other insisted, which led to an explanation. The count drew from his pocket the fresh notes he had received in the morning. The French nobleman, quite stupefied, examined them carefully, and found that they were false. The gentleman with the decoration turned out to be a notorious thief and swindler, who had thus contrived to net ten thousand francs in genuine bank-notes.

Beaver in a Deep Hole.

The Store Order Question Assumes an Entirely New Phase.

The Address of Beaver's Employes Causes Much Indignation Among the Knights of Labor—Will the Beaver Store Orders be Taxed as a Circulating Medium ?

The apology for the store orders or "trade coupons" used by the Bellefonte Iron and Nail Company, of which General Beaver is president, sent out by David Haines as master workman of Labor assembly 2,333 of Bellefonte, has aroused much ill feeling among the Knights of Labor in that region. The circular is signed by a number of the workmen of the Bellefonte Iron and Nail Company, and, under an arrangement with the Republican state committee, has been mailed to every Labor assembly in the state in circular form and in large numbers. This circular says :

It is a wicked and malicious falsehood that any employe of the company was ever offered or ever received store orders in payment for wages. The Hoyt coupon system, in use at the store, is the best system we know of and is far superior to pass books. We are paid in cash on monthly pay days, and can draw cash at any time during the month. The coupon system is only used when we prefer dealing at the store, and that is entirely voluntary on our part. The system avoids keeping accounts by the workingmen. Our employers inaugurated the system at the suggestion and request of some of our workmen. They have always been willing to abolish it if the employes had made the request. To say this statement bears any relation to the odious store order system is a falsehood and slander upon us Knights of Labor, as well as upon General Beaver as an employer of labor.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR OFFENDED.

The circular is the first political paper ever distributed to the Labor assemblies of the state, and it has offended Knights of Labor generally, independent of their particular views of General Beaver's candidacy. Word has been received by members of the assembly in Bellefonte of the circulars having been refused circulation among the assemblies, simply because they were a flagrant violation of the established law of the order forbiddmg the introduction of any partisan politics in the assemblies. The partisan circular thus sent out has called out a counter statement from some fifty members of Labor Assembly 2,333 embracing both Republicans and Democrats, in which they deprecate the introduction of politics in the order, and especially dissent from the statement that the assembly could in any way sanction the use of store orders in payment of labor, and they arraign Master Workman Haines for violation of his official obligations in signing and issuing a political circular. On the subject of the trade coupons used by the Bellefonte Iron and Nail Company, the counter circular says :

"We further declare that the invitation in that paper to Knights of Labor to apply to Assembly 2,333 for a vindication of the pay system of the Bellefonte Iron and Nail Company is entirely unauthorized by any action of that assembly and would certainly meet with the answer from that body that one of the fundamental principles of the order is that nothing but the lawful money of the country should be used for the payment of working people and that the use of store orders for that purpose is a fraud upon labor and a violation of the law.

"In conclusion we assert, from reliable information, that this paper vindicating the store order system was circulated through the nail mill for signatures at the instance of a Republican politician working for the Republican state committee, and, such being the fact, it can be looked upon only as a political scheme, and its circulation among Knights of Labor can be viewed in no other light than as an attempt to prostitute their order to a political purpose. Any member of the order desiring information concerning the trade coupon system can have it in plain terms by applying to the undersigned members of L. A. 2,333."

The foregoing is signed by James Schofield, J. A. Williams, R. Hutchinson, Harry Siebert, Grant J. Peifer, John Lucas, James Sharp, John Hull, William Rhoads, William Stratton, Wm. Wolf, John Davis, John Williams and some forty others, and as it is in the line of the clearly defined duties and obligations of the Knights of Labor on political questions, it has the general approval of the members of that large organization in Bellefonte and throughout the state.

The Bellefonte Circular Disavowed.

The Wilkesbarre Newsdealer, the reorganized organ of the laboring men, contains interviews with Thomas Dullard, president of the Miners' and Laborers' Amalgamated Association and William H. Hines, the author of the company store bill of 1879, in which they say in substance that the circular letter sent cut by thirty-three Bellefonte workingmen cannot be approved by organized labor, that an increasing battle has been waged for years against the insulting, swindling and oppressive company store system and the recent decision of the supreme court declaring the company store act of 1881 unconstitutional, makes it imperatively necessary that the workingmen shall stand united against store orders of any kind. They say that Powderly's opposition to company stores correctly voices the opinion of laboring men.

If Not Store Orders They are Taxable.

The store order dispute in Pennsylvania has been transferred to Washington, by an appeal of the Bellefonte Iron and Nail Company, of which General Beaver is president, from an assessment of the ten per cent. tax on the trade coupons of that company that the law imposes upon all circulating medium that is represented as money. When the partners made their public explanation over their own signatures, they declared that the trade coupons are not

Democratic Rally

A Democratic Mass Meeting will be held at Millheim on Saturday evening Oct. 30th, which will be addressed by HON. J. H. FOW, of Philadelphia, one of the ablest and most prominent political speakers in the state. HON. ANDRAW G. CURTIN, of Bellefonte, has also promised to be here and will address the people in his usual eloquent style.

Let the Democracy of Penns and Brush valleys turn out en masse and hear the issues of this campaign discussed by these distinguished orators.

The services of the Millheim and Rebersburg bands have been engaged for this meeting.

Come one! Come all!

Vote for Chauncey F. Black for Governor.

TO ELECT the ticket which was fairly and squarely placed in the field by their own delegates will be the imperative duty of loyal Democrats next Tuesday. There is not a man upon that ticket which Democrats need be ashamed of, to the contrary they are all honorable and deserving citizens. Let us show the vile slanderers of the opposing party, who have been moving heaven and earth to belittle the democratic candidates, that by their dirty work they accomplished no more than to arouse contempt and disgust for themselves. Personal feeling and prejudice should be altogether out of the question when it comes to political duty. The success of the party is at stake and as a Democrat you must vote the whole of the Democratic ticket.

Vote for James K. P. Hall for Congress.

ANOTHER CAMPAIGN LIE is effectually nailed by Hon Leonard Rhone's positive denial of having done anything detrimental to Mr. Shaeffer's election for prothonotary. Mr. Rhone called at our office yesterday forenoon and told us distinctly that he is for the whole democratic ticket and that he never entertained the thought of opposing any of the candidates. The report was circulated by Republicans with a view of throwing a fire-brand into the democratic camp in the very last hour and thus destroy Mr. Rhone's chances of election. Democrats do not heed these vile rumors but stick to your ticket unflinchingly. Vote for Rhone and Woodward.

Vote for Rhone and Woodward for Assembly.

EVEN Republican newspapers concede that Blaine's visit to Pennsylvania was a mistake. The Evening Penny Press, Pittsburg, a staunch republican journal admits that his trip through the state was a failure and says that the most prominent republicans of the county refused to participate in it or countenance it.

It seems that neither Blaine nor any other political potentate can save Beaver, the "pluck-me" candidate from defeat. Black is the people's choice and it would be the next thing to a miracle if he is not elected next Tuesday.

Vote for L. A. Shaeffer for Prothonotary.

DEMOCRATS, the few days that remain of this fall's campaign should be spent in activity. Do not stay at home idle, but make it your business to have everything in order and readiness for next Tuesday. See to it that every democratic vote is cast and that it is cast for the democratic ticket. Remember that lukewarmness means defeat, while with solid and untiring work we will elect our state and county ticket. Up and at them!

BEWARE of the deceptive stories raised by the tricky Republican politicians between this and election. They will have all kinds of astonishing and sensational trash ready and wherever they find an unwary Democrat they will set their trap. Hold your own and vote nothing but the democratic ticket.

The Blaine Demonstration at Bellefonte Turned into a Riotous Brawl.

Just as we go to press we receive information of a disgraceful occurence which happened at Bellefonte yesterday forenoon, shortly before the arrival of the train which brought Blaine to that place.

Beaver's nail works employes were parading the streets, some of them having indulged in spirituous drinks which, by the way, they must have bought with trade coupons, and passing the Watchman office they caught sight of a "store order" bill hanging in Mr. Meek's window. They at once gave vent to their mad passions by hurling stones at the building, and by smashing nearly every window of the office. The excitement is said to have been intense and as a natural consequence the partisan feelings all the worse. It makes certainly a bad showing for the Beaver men and in our opinion it would have benefited Beaver more if Blaine had not come to Bellefonte. As soon as political meetings give rise to actions that very much resemble anarchism the thing would better be stopped. If republican paraders once forget to be orderly and peaceable, something must be wrong in the organization. Vote for Black.

ALL that is necessary to elect Chauncey F. Black governor of Pennsylvania is to get out the Democratic vote. Chairman Hensel of the state committee is confident of success. All the indications point to a democratic victory and every democrat should be proud to have a share in such an important victory. Vote and vote early!

NEXT Tuesday will show how little it payed to take the Blaine hippodrome through the state of Pennsylvania. The Republican state committee will find themselves out of pocket with no reward for their extra labor and expense and Beaver and his colleagues on the ticket will have to stand their own fare for the trip up Salt River.

Vote for J. Calvin Meyer for District Attorney.

A Fraud Exposed.

The Organ of the Iron Workers Repudiates a Transparent Trick.

In the current issue of the Labor Tribune, of Pittsburg, appears the following. It is a special significance, because the Tribune is the official organ of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of the United States:

Rebuke the False Pretense.

In justification of the course of the Bellefonte Iron and Nail company in issuing scrip to their workmen, which is being used against Gen. James A. Beaver, the Republican candidate for Governor in this State, who is a member of that firm, there is a circular going around alleged to be issued by the workingmen themselves, justifying the course of the firm in issuing the scrip—that it was at their (the workmen's) request, etc. Four of the men whose names are attached to the circular, a copy of which has been sent to every K. of L. assembly in Pennsylvania, claim to be members of the K. of L. Of this we have no knowledge, but we here assert, positively, that none of those names on the circular who claim membership in the Amalgamated Association can be found on our register. They are NOT members of the Amalgamated Association, and as that association is opposed to the payment of wages in scrip or anything else in lieu of cash, we deem it but justice to it to so state publicly, that it may not rest under the imputation these pliable tools thought of putting upon it. We believe in letting the sun shine in on the truth though the heaven's fall.

Black and Blaine.

From the New York Sun.

Mr. Blaine has nearly finished the journey which he undertook in fulfillment of a pious resolution to revisit his birthplace before the faded leaves had all fallen from the trees. The political advice which he has given to his friends along the way has been, we take it, merely incidental.

Summed up in brief, Mr. Blaine's counsel to the voters of Pennsylvania is that the tariff, the amelioration of the condition of the Southern blacks, and all the other great national questions are involved in the candidacy of General Beaver. Mr. Blaine's speeches, with trifling alterations, would serve equally well in Minnesota.

Mr. Black is also making a sort of triumphal progress through Pennsylvania, and he is received everywhere with unbounded enthusiasm. He is speaking, too, but he is speaking right to the point. The issues which he presents to the voters are those immediately concerning the honest administration of the business of the State, the strict enforcement of the constitutional safeguards against oppression and discrimination by monopolies, and the amelioration of the condition, not of the negroes of the South, but of the workingmen of the State of Pennsylvania.

Although the two distinguished gentlemen have not met, there has been in a certain sense a joint discussion between them as to what questions are involved in the pending election. It seems to us that Mr. Black has clearly got the better of Mr. Blaine in the argument.

But could the Beaver managers have paid a more significant tribute to the vigor with which Mr. Black is prosecuting his campaign than by sending all the way to the Kennebec for the foremost of living Republicans to come and try to beat him?

CONGRESS.

Why should the people of Clearfield county elect John Patton to Congress?

What has he ever done to promote the interests, the welfare, or the prosperity of the people of the county? He has been essentially personal and selfish in all his business movements from the beginning of his career. Whilst a merchant and lumberman furnishing supplies to the people of the county, his universal rule was to enter up judgements for advances and he sold out more people in his mercantile career than any other man in the county. When the National Bank system went into operation, and was profitable, he sold his real estate, (except his home property) and invested his means in a National bank, and it was his boast that it made more money than any National bank of its capital in the state. He paid no taxes on all the large amount of capital he had invested in that. When government bonds paid a lower rate of interest, and when the laws held National banks down to six per cent. interest, he closed out the National bank, and converted it into a private bank, where a heavier rate of interest, and easier "shaving" could be carried on. For ten years past, until this year, he returned no money at interest for taxation. This year, under compulsion of law, he returns $50,000. He owns no real estate upon which taxes are paid except in his own immediate locality, and the total assessment of his property for 1885 was less than $15,000. He is said to be, and his friends boast that he is a millionaire.

Where is his capital invested? How many railroads has he helped to build in Clearfield county? Where has he aided in the development of the county except in the short line from Clearfield to Curwensville? How much money has he invested in collieries? How much in firebrick works? How much in lumber establishments? How many men does he employ in work of any character? He has no money invested in such enterprises and the total of his employes, outside of his bank, is one man. The employment of his capital consists in loaning money at a high rate of interest, as a private banker, to business men, and enquiry made of his relatives and customers will demonstrate the fact that those rates are not very moderate. He has recently purchased coal lands in the south end of the county. The amount of lands or the quality of the coal only he and those associated with him know. It is not returned for taxation, whilst others, residents and non-residents are taxed for coal thus purchased. His total taxes in that section paid this year is less than $100.

His opponent, Mr. Hall, of Elk county, is an active, vigorous business man. He has his capital in collieries, tanneries and saw mills. He employs in connection with his associates in these callings hundreds of men, and with them he has no contest. He is a selfmade man, and is actively engaged in every enterprise that comes to the people of his county.—Clearfield Democrat.

MINERS & LABORERS READ

Having seen statements in different Newspapers to the effect that the Hon. J. K. P. Hall, in whose employ we are, made use of store orders in payment for our labor we desire to make the following true statement and make affidavit to the same.

We are paid monthly in cash. We are entirely free to deal at any store where we can be served best and cheapest. We have never been required or importuned to deal at the store of the firm of which Mr. Hall is a member, but are left entirely at liberty to make our purchases, where and from whom we please.

We have a weighman of our own choosing at the scales at the mines, without any expense to ourselves. We make this statement of our own free will, to set right any wrong or erroneous impression that may have been made on the minds of our brother workmen, in other parts of the district, and in justice to Mr. Hall, who has ever been our friend, and who has stood by us in times of dullness and depression.

EPHRATA, Pa, Oct. 21.—David Apple, aged 47 years, residing at Meadow Valley, in Ephrata township, was engaged at husking corn on the premises of Henry Kurtz when he met with a terrible accident that resulted in his death. He was in the act of pulling over a shock of corn and in doing so caught hold of it by the belt. The belt tore and the man was thrown back seating him violently on a corn stubble which penetrated his body to the depth of about six inches. He died about noon. Deceased was a married man and leaves a family.

Don't Experiment.

You cannot afford to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems, at first, only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, but be sure and get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affections. Trial bottles free at J. Eisenhuth's Drug Store.

—Scarlet fever and diphtheria are spread by contagion, by the transfer of living matter. These particles come from the skin, the membranous lining of the mouth, nose and throat, and from the intestines and urinary organs. —The RED BOOK as usual makes its appearance just when wanted, and the State edition this year abounds with statistical information of the character now most in demand. The little publication has become the standard political text-book, and not only is it of unquestioned value as an authority upon election results, but is a model of clean and most artistic typography. As of old it is sent without money and without price by inclosing stamp to C. K. Lord, Baltimore Md.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchants to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless preparations drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

—The first two sessions of Prof. Bierly's singing school on last Saturday evening and Saturday evening preceding were of the most interesting and instructing nature. It is to be regretted however that not near the full number of the class were in attendance. All are requested to be present at the next session which on account of the democratic meeting will likely be postponed until next week.

—CATARRH is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

—A Democratic mass meeting will be held at Millheim next Saturday night. Mr. Fow, of Philadelphia, one of the best speakers on the stump in this canvass will address the people. Turn out, one and all, and hear the issues of this campaign discussed in an able manner. Many of our readers have heard Mr. Fow speak in former campaigns and they will not miss to hear him again.

—On Monday it began to look like business on the factory grounds. The Smulls from Brushvalley and the Kerstetters from Sugar Valley, five masons in all, with as many tenders, commenced work on the walls of the large building and as we go to press the job is well advanced. In a few weeks the two-story structure, 50 x 80 feet large will be up and under roof, presenting a sight that will inspire everybody with hopes of future prosperity and enterprise for Millheim.

Saved His Life.

Mr. D. L. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with Phthisic, also Diabetes; the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured, and had gained in flesh eighteen pounds. Says he positively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by J. Eisenhuth.

—A gentleman came to our sanctum the other day and gave us a bit of information which by no means casts a creditable reflection upon some of our young people. Repeatedly he has passed the churches and private homes, while the members were engaged in religious exercises and caught these would-be smart striplings outside in in the act of mocking and ridiculing the singing and praying going on within. He wishes us to give them fair warning to let up on this business, otherwise he will take legal steps to stop their unbecoming conduct, as he is in possesion of their names and has the neces sary proof to bring them to justice.

WORK FOR ONE LADY IN EVERY COUNTY.—The publishers of THE HOUSEKEEPER, Minneapolis, Minn., wish to employ one bright lady agent in every county in the United States at a good pay and permanent employment to an efficient worker. THE HOUSEKEEPER is now very popular and will be even more so with Maud Meridith, the brilliant new editor in charge. The publishers offer special floral premises worth $1,00 and the last three months of 1886 free to all who subscribe now for 1887 at $1.00 per year. These floral premiums are a specialty, over 700,000 having been sent out in 1886.

—We had the pleasure of a delightful ride to Spring Mills the other day in company with station agent Kreamer, of Coburn, and landlord Rook, of the National, who kindly furnished his best conveyance. After an excellent dinner at Shafer's hotel our party was taken to the creamery by Mr. G. R. Spigelmyer, and Ralph proved himself a very accomodating guide. We were given a free look at the interior of the butter factory with a full explanation of all its details and machinery. Spring Mills is proud of its enterprise and it has a right to be. Everything about the establishment is in first-class order and suggests a successful and lucrative business. We are told the creamery will be operated this week yet.

FINE TIMBERLAND AND A GOOD FARM FOR SALE.—On Friday, November 12th, 1886, at 1 o'clock, p. m. there will be offered at Orphan's Court Sale a tract of land containing 370 ACRES, late the property of Chas. Ripka, deceased, and situate in Gregg township, Centre Co., Pa. Seventy acres thereof are cleared and fit for cultivation; 50 acres are ordinary timberland, the remaining 250 acres are the best timberland in the county. This part of the tract contains TWO MILLION FEET of the BESST WHITE PINE TIMBER in Penns Valley and THREE MILLION FEET of EXCELLENT HEMLOCK, also good oak and other wood. The tract is but four miles from the L. & T. railroad with a good road leading to Spring Mills. This timberland will be offered seperately from the farmland and affords a rare opportunity for lumber operations. There will also be sold a GOOD FARM, in the best state of cultivation and with good buildings erected thereon. Terms: One-fourth of purchase mony on confirmation of sale, balance in two equal annual payments, with interest and usual securities. 40 4t

WEDDING BELLS.—The marriage ceremonies of S. D. Huntingdon and Miss Lizzie King, which took place at the house of the bride's mother on Main street, Tuesday evening, were attended by about thirty guests. The rites were performed by Rev. Yearick, after which the party partook of a sumptuous supper. The band gave the happy couple one of their sweet serenades and we e regaled very nicely in return. Mr. & Mrs. Huntingdon departed for Wisconsin this morning. We wish the newly-wedded couple the best luck and much happiness.

LAST WEEK'S DEATH RECORD.—Mr. George Edga, an elderly gentleman, who for several years resided with Jac. W. Moyer, in Penn township, near the Coburn tollgate, died on Thursday night of last week. Deceased used to live in town in former years and was well-known. He was a batchelor.

The same night Mrs. Lydia Miller, of Aaronsburg, departed this life. She was a sister of Mrs. Henry Frankenberger and was formerly a resident of this town.

DEATH OF A MILLHEIM YOUTH.—On Thursday morning our town people got a sad reminder of the saying that "in the midst of life we are in death," by the announcement that William, a son of David Miller, on Main Street, died on Wednesday night of typhoid fever. The young man had barely reached the age of nineteen years and was always known as an active and healthy boy. Less than two weeks before his death he was seen on the streets with his companions, when he was prostrated on his sickbed by the malignant fever which ended his life. His early death should be a serious lesson to the young people who run along the race of life in the most reckless and unthinking fashion. Will was a great favorite with his parents who are bowed down with deep grief and sorrow by the loss of their son. The remains were buried on Friday afternoon and services were held in the Luth. church on Saturday forenoon by Rev. Heckman.

NEW RAILROADS.—A charter having been granted by the state department to the Bellefonte Eastern Railroad company with a capital stock of $1,000,000, there is every reason to believe that the line from Milton to Bellefonte, a distance of fifty miles, will strike Sugar Valley. If so, it behooves the Penna. R. R. company to do something with the L. & T. branch. A road through Sugar Valley will naturally take the Brushvalley traffic over the mountain, and unless the L. & T. road comes closer to this point there will be a considerable drop in the business of the latter road. Competition is as marked a factor in railroad business as in any other branch of business. An extension of the L. & T. road to this point would incur but very little expense, the road from Coburn station to Millheim being almost ready graded and level. The necessity of a line which will hold the trade of these valleys, by no means insignificant, must appear as logical to the railroad men as it does to a common business mind. In the interest of this section of country as well as their own we earnestly hope that the Penna. Railroad company will take steps to run a branch up here. There are many encouraging features about this locality that would promise a good return to a venture of this kind. We base this sugestion upon the general feeling of nearly all our people and whether it rests there or not it will do no harm to discuss the matter, but may do much good.

—PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for November is on our table, the very queen of lady's books. It has a charming steel-plate, "A Message From the Sea," a mammoth colored fashion plate, a portrait of Ann S. Stephens, some fifty other illustrations, and several original stories of unusual power. How the publisher can afford to keep improving the magazine, as he does, is a standing wonder. With this number appears the Prospectus for next year. It promises even better things, and "Peterson" always keeps his promises. There will be over 1,200 printed pages, 14 steel engravings, 12 mammoth colored steel fashion-plates, from 800 to 900 wood-cuts and six copyright novelets, by Ann S. Stephens, Mrs. John Sherwood, Edgar Fawcett, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. M. V. Spencer, and Agnes Bowman—and one hundred smaller original stories, etc. In short, the magazine will continue to be, as heretofore, the cheapest and best for ladies. The terms are only TWO DOLLARS a year. To clubs, it is cheaper still, viz: four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy to the person getup the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy and the "Book of Beauty," beautifully illustrated, or a large steel-engraving, "Mother's Darling." Every lady should take this maga zine. It is really a household-nece sity. Now is the time to subscribe. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chesthut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Specimens are sent, gratis, if written for to get up clubs with.

Work is being pushed on the new planing mill of Andrew Vonada. The building was raised last week.

Squire Gettig has resigned his commission as squire, the same having been accepted by the Governor. Our village is now without a seat of justice which should not be the case and we hope, should there be an appointment made, it will be one that will give as good satisfaction as did Squire Gettig while holding the position and we know of none more able or better fitted to fill the vacant place and one who would give entire satisfaction than Mr. A. J. Campbell.

We failed to mention in our last that on the night of Oct. 14th, thieves broke into the house of Jacob Kern and stole his pocket book containing $15 hard earned money.

There is not much news here politically. Things seem to move along smoothly and their is no danger of any loss on the ticket in this township.

On Saturday eve is to be the closing meeting of the campaign in Millheim. That great orator and stumper Mr. Fow, of Phila., will be there and other noted speakers. A large crowd is expected to be there.

As typhoid fever has broken out in this vicinity it is well for all to be careful of the water they use. A great mistake is the dam in our midst which has no flood gates or any way to let off the great amount of filth which gathers there, rots and smells and which will certainly be the means of creating sickness in our midst.

The festival held here was a success financially, we understand about $40 was cleared.

There will be an excursion to Bellefonte, Wednesday, to see the Blaine show. Fare for round trip we are informed will be 92cts, and as this is the last issue before election there remains only one thing more and that is all turn out on election day and each one see that his neighbor gets to the polls and that not one vote be lost. By doing this there will be such a majority for Black and the whole ticket as to astonish the natives. VALE.

AARONSBURG.

John Sylvis moved his family to Millheim on last Thursday.

John C. Rote and family, after a visit of several weeks to his mother Mrs. Simon Rote, returned home last week.

Mrs. David Bollinger and D. H. Rote have lately improved their residences by giving them several coats of paint. S. H. Diehl will do likewise.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Coburn and Mrs. Eva Rodgers have returned from the east where they had been visiting for a week or ten days.

Esq. H. A. Mingle who was confined to his sick chamber for a few days is again out and able to attend to his daily duties.

Charley Grimm from Madisonburg, was canvassing our town last week selling door bells and silver ware. His door bells are of a very superior quality.

Editor Feidler, of the Bellefonte Gazette passed through town and gave us a wave of his hand on last Saturday. A call and a few minutes chat would not have been objectionable.

Our schools have been in progress for little more than a week and from all reports both teachers and scholars are getting along very finely. Glad to hear this.

Geo. Bollinger has turned out Shoester again. He has taken a seat of work with Mr. Weaver at Woodward. Go in George, pulling wax ends and driving pegs is honorable work.

H. H. Weaver returned from the western counties of this state, where he had been to dispose of the balance of his Holstein cattle. We suppose Henry sold out and got the tin.

John Foster who was down for the past few weeks with typhoid fever is at this writing on a fair way to recovery. John took his disease at college in Lewisburg and just arrived home in time to receive the kind and careful attention of his mother and sister during his sickness.

The attendance at the funerals of Geo. Edga and Lydia Miller, on last Sunday morning was large. The burial services were held in the Lutheran church. Rev. Deitzler, the pastor, being away on a visit Rev. Yearick, (Ref.) officiated. ANOTHER.

The secret of successful advertising is to tell the truth. When we say that Dreydoppel's Borax Soap is the best and cheapest soap you can use for all purposes, it is a plain statement of fact, and the best way for you to satisfy yourself is to try a pound.

WOODWARD.

Grandmother Young is now residing with her son-in-law, Mr. Adam Weaver.

Thieves burglarized Wolf's store last Thursday night with powder. They broke open the iron safe and abstracted the contents. The money taken they can use as they see proper, but Mr. Wolf would feel thankful if they would return the other papers which are only of value to him.

Protracted meeting is in progress here and is being well attended.

ARGENTI.

SPRING MILLS.

Mr. Weirick, formerly of Penn Hall, is making preparations to open up a saddler shop in our town. We understand he has leased the shop opposite the post office.

Miss Leasie Miller made a very narrow escape the other day. She was driving some cows into the barnyard when one of them turned and run against her with such force as to knock her down. She was picked up in an unconscious state but, we are glad to say that her injuries, which no doubt are painful are not considered dangerous.

The Spring Mills creamery will commence operations this week. We are told that the prospects of success are flattering.

Harvey Smith's oldest son, a boy of some three years, died very suddenly on Sunday morning last.

Our schools commenced last Monday. Prof. Wm. P. Hosterman teaches the first grade, Hiram Grove the intermediate and R. U. Bitner the primary. With such teachers our schools should prosper.

Isaac Frain and wife from Jacksonville, spent a few days in town last week They were the guests of Mrs. Sarah Zeigler. *

REBERSBURG.

Our farmers have finished corn husking and have housed an abundant crop.

Wm. Kreamer purchased a fine team of horses.

The Joseph Gramley farm was sold one day last week to Michael Eby, of near Woodward, at $53 per acre.

Morris Gilbert was a lucky man one day last week. While he was at work near Walker's dam a deer, which had been chased by several dogs came running along at full speed. Mr. Gilbert saw that it was coming towards him in a bee line and he prepared to receive it with open arms. Mr. deer fairly leaped into his arms and Gilbert embraced the deer tightly until he received assistance when they took the captive home and imprisoned him in a cage.

Newton Sheinefelt who worked the latter part of this summer for Wes. Snyder will winter with Jerome Meyers after this week.

Mrs. Spangler, wife of Jno. Spangler, Sr., is on the sick list. Her recovery is doubtful.

Died on Oct. 21., of palsy, Mrs. Bierly, wife of Anthony Bierly, aged 75 years, 8 months and several days. Her remains were buried on Saturday forenoon in the Lutheran and Reformed cemetery.

Rev. Dotterer, (Reformed) administered the Lord's supper on last Sunday. The attendance was large.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria, store orders but that they represented so much cash and were a convenient cash circulating medium for the convenience of workmen.

If a circulating medium is the similitude of money, they are taxable under the act of Congress at the rate of ten per cent. every time they are issued, and as the officers of the company publicly declared that they were simply cash orders, the collector of internal revenue for the district investigated the subject and decided, upon the statements of the parties issuing them, that they were a circulating medium and assessed the lawful tax upon them. When notified of the tax, which was ten per cent. on some $60,000, the officers of the company appealed the case to Commissioner Miller, of the internal revenue department, on the ground that the coupons are trade or store orders and not a cash circulating medium. The commissioner refuses to give any information on the subject, but it is known that the appeal is before him, and that he must decide either that they are a cash circulating medium and tax them, or that they are store orders and declare that they are not taxable. In view of the political prominence given to the store order question in several Pennsylvania contests, including governor and congressmen, it excites general interest in Washington political circles.

How a Farmer Shaves.

To witness a farmer shave is one of the most painful operations ever witnessed outside of downright butchery. For some reason away beyond the depth of present knowledge, the man who breads the country always has a beard like a new hair brush, and he never could learn how to sharpen a razor.

He gets on the back stoop with his shaving utensils, and after rubbing the razor over the strap in an awkward fashion until whatever trace of edge it may have had has been destroyed, he hangs up his broken glass and takes a position alongside the kitchen door, where the old lady will be sure to jostle his arm when she goes out to empty her dish water.

With a brush that has but little handle remaining, he manages somehow to stir up a lot of lather from soap that would raise a blister on the bottom of a boy's foot in dog days, with which he coats his face till nothing but his eyes and the back of his head are visible. With a cob dipped in warm water he goes over the stubble with a vigor that makes the flesh creep, until he feels that all the reasonable precautions for comfort in the subsequent operation have been taken.

Taking the razor and looking at it suspiciously over the top of his glasses, he runs his thumb along the edge, fails to draw blood as he had hoped, and then with a sigh like leaving a town in a hurry, he grabs himself by the nose, shuts his eyes, and gives a scrape that makes his hair stand on end as a bunch of beard seems to come out by the roots.

But once at it a terrible desperation seems to nerve him, and with teeth set he goes right on with a determination to get the agony over as soon as possible. Howls of woe break from him now and then, as an expression that poisons life steals over his face and stops there till the last nerve has been pulled out of socket by that terrible razor, and the last bit of stubble has been laid low, when, with a sigh of relief, he strikes up a hymn of thanksgiving and joyfully throws his shaving paper into the swill barrel near by.—Ex.
